OpenBordersMBA
Executive MBA
FOR EXPERIENCED MANAGERS
One of the roles of business schools throughout the world is to provide their surrounding economy with managers who know how to add value to the projects of their companies.

To do so, business schools need to listen to and even anticipate the needs of businesses and translate them into skills and competencies taught in their evolving programs.

Over the last two decades, growing globalization has brought along the need to produce and sell in networks, to think in multicultural terms and to set up international projects.

This new economic setting makes traditional skills more crucial. Professional language skills, the ability to work with partners from new horizons and the understanding of the cultural aspects of markets are assets when it comes to winning contracts, delivering products and services and setting up research and development projects.
«With their expertise in business teaching and research, their decades of experience in language teaching and student exchange programs and their partnerships within their local economy, HEC Liège, Management School of the University of Liège, FH Aachen, University of Applied Sciences and Hasselt University find themselves ideally equipped to set up an MBA centered on the needs of businesses, whether local or international, large or small, and within a Euregional, European or worldwide scope.»

TEACHING METHODS

As an action-oriented program, the OpenBordersMBA provides participants multiple opportunities to share and benefit from each other’s expertise and work experience thanks to:

- The self-preparation based on professors and experts instructions (individual preparation, group works, readings, paper writing, presentations, personal coaching, case study analysis, etc.)
- The duo of professor and expert who lead their seminars and coach the participants before and during their seminar (problem solving in groups, meetings with experts, experience sharing, team strategy presentations, conflict resolution role-play, computer-based business simulation, negotiations and debates, peer evaluations sessions, etc.)
- Your professional activity (working on company’s projects, problem solving coaching, extending the network of your company, assignments on different aspects of your company, sharing new skills and ideas with colleagues, etc.).

Teaching methods are based on reflective learning and experience sharing, constant challenges and alternation of diverse ways of active learning before and during the seminar session.

In order to provide an efficient knowledge transfer to the participant, the learning process of each seminar is spread over 3 to 4 weeks with the preparation phase (12-15 hours a week/ 48-60 hours a month) and the seminar weekend in itself.

Each seminar is designed by a duo of a professor and an expert in order for the participants to combine academic knowledge and research with the best practices used in companies.
Building on the reputation of their academics and their interaction with local and international businesses, the three partner institutions have emphasized the inter-regional and international aspects of the content of the program, tuition languages (French, English, Dutch and German) and faculty.

The latter come from Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium as well as other countries in or outside Europe. In order to save time and money on expensive field trips, the OpenBordersMBA invites international guest speakers and experts.
