Introduction

In 2014 HEC clarified its strategic vision for research : « HEC looks for international recognition and to make a strong impact on its environment by generating knowledge aimed at the international scientific community, its region's socio-economic environment, its educational community, as well as its students and doctoral candidates. Research at HEC-ULg is in tune with society, the economic world, as well as with alternative and interdisciplinary approaches. »

To reach its goals, HEC set up a research commission, Prisme. Prisme actively contributed to developing research at HEC by supporting its researchers' activities: it organized 22 research seminars in economics and management, acquired two new databases in finances, sponsored 20 researchers participating in international conferences, organized two courses for the Doctoral School taught by reputed overseas professors (Pascal François of HEC Montreal and Teresa Nelson of Simmons College, Boston), etc. Prisme also finances a 4-year doctoral scholarship for an HEC researcher and a one-year post-doctoral scholarship. Additionally, the incentive-based publishing policy made it possible to reward 33 of our researchers with grants of about 1200 euros aimed at supporting their research.

Research publications are indexed in this annual research report, and, on its basis, Prisme devises quality and quantity indicators that enable it to assess whether its objectives are achieved. All the publications in this report are accessible through the ORBI interface (orbi.ulg.ac.be). ORBI is the Open Access institutional directory of the University of Liège. Most of the publication are available in full-text. The publications included in this report have been downloaded so far 10,245 times and we expect to strengthen the Institution's prestige and the influence of our researchers by distributing research on a global scale.

In order to evaluate its scientific production and orient its main strategic positioning, Prisme set up an international scientific committee (COSCI). This committee gathers first-rate scientists in the School's various research areas. Inviting these experts on a regular basis also provides researchers with the experience and expertise of 10 personalities who are internationally recognized for their research. The next COSCI will meet in 2016.

HEC research mainly revolves around its 6 peaks of excellence: Asset & Risk Management ; Economic Analysis & Public Governance ; Human Resources Management & Organizational Change ; Social Enterprises & the Social Economy ; Supply Chain Management & Quantitative Methods ; Tax Institute. Being closely connected with the business world, the School is also developing 11 chairs in innovative areas thanks to its privileged partners: « Sustainable Strategy », « Digital Marketing and Sales Management », « Strategic Intelligence », etc. HEC coordinates or participates in over 100 research projects, among which 3 IAP – Interuniversity Attraction Pole financed by the federal government, 3 ARC – Collaborative Research Activities financed by the Wallonia-Brussels Federation.

Asset & Risk Management

Closely in touch with the latest practices in portfolio management, fundamental equity research and financial risk management, the Finance Department of HEC-ULg Management School has founded the "Center for Asset and Risk Management (CARM)".

The center runs an applied research program focusing on practical applications for education and the professional community.

The cornerstone of the Center's approach to developing its research program is the way in which it crosses scientific research with the identification of the financial sector's real needs. The research teams combine solid academic training with strong, permanent contacts with the world of banking and asset management, not only in Belgium but also in Canada, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, France and Luxembourg. More particularly, CARM's full-time team leaders hold a chair – PWC Luxembourg Chair in Fund Industry, Ethias Chair in Asset and Risk Management and Deloitte Chair of Portfolio Management. This triple partnership guarantees a perfect interconnection with the business world. Such proximity allows every CARM member or associate to contribute actively to producing solutions which respond or will respond to the needs, either expressed or anticipated, of their partners in the financial world.

As concerns teaching and training, CARM instigated the creation of a virtual marketplace placed under the responsibility of the Center's members. A Trading Room with access to financial and corporate data constitutes the basis for teaching the market approach in finance. CARM's members teach in various leading business schools such as Maastricht University, Luxembourg School of Finance, Paris Dauphine, ED-HEC Business School (Lille, Nice, London).

The tradition of excellence in teaching at HEC-ULg's Management School, as well as its driving role in regional development also result in a commitment to excellence in research through the activities of CARM. CARM's contribution to the economic life of the region takes multiple forms. Teaching staff attached to the Center are all involved in several permanent education programs in the fields of asset and risk management, either in business or in the context of professional certification (CFA, CAIA, FRM...) both in Belgium and abroad. The jewel of this commitment is symbolized by the creation and development of Gambit Financial Solutions, a financial technology business created within HEC-ULg Business School specializing in the fields of investor profiling, portfolio optimization and risk management.

The objectives of the EAPG peak of excellence are to contribute to the scientific and policy debates related to economic policies both at the regional and the international level, to offer all students at HEC-ULg quality higher education in economics, and to train future economists.

The financial crisis has emphasized the necessity of providing HEC students with an in-depth understanding of the globalized economic system. Mixing economic theory, data analysis and econometrics and applying these tools for the understanding of economic problems are the key contributions of the EAPG to the training of HEC students.

The EAPG aims to develop scientific research and applied expertise in three fields which have earned an international reputation:

- Competition and Innovation. This line of research explores the complex relationship between competition and innovation in society, from both an economic and legal standpoints. Competition policy, intellectual property and the digital economy are the prominent topics of study. Economists involved in this line of research contribute to the recently created Liège Competition and Innovation Institute (LCII), a research center of HEC-ULg and the ULG Law Department. For more information, visit lci.eu

- Regional economic policy. HEC wants to further develop research linked to the development of economic activities in its region and the EAPG contributes actively to this topic by producing research linked to regional policies, including the support for innovation and its link with growth, the organization and management of public services and the organization of energy markets.

- Public Economics is the first field of expertise of economists in Liege and brought them recognition beyond the academic circles. Building on this inheritance, the EAPG has set itself the goal of developing applications for public governance in other fields, including the design of innovation incentives, international trading policies, regional policies and market regulation. Since its creation, the EAPG has been the French-speaking data collection center for the SHARE survey (Survey on Health, Ageing, and Retirement in Europe), a multi-disciplinary project on health and socio-economic issues linked to ageing.

HEC

Management School

The objectives of the HEC-ULg has several professors and research centers specializing in human resources management and organizational change. These teams study the policies and practices put in place to utilize and develop human resources in order to achieve greater efficiency and optimal output for the organization in support of the company's strategy. All the dimensions of HRM are taken into account through centers of expertise in change management, knowledge management, industrial relations, gender and diversity management, expatriate and intercultural management. Numerous professors are also specialists in organizational theory.

This expertise translates into a diversified offering of courses, research work, permanent education, and organizational intervention missions.

The center's research units specialize in various aspects of HRM and change management. EGID (Studies on Gender and Diversity in Management), under the direction of Professor Annie Cornet, is a center specializing in the management of diversity, gender, and professional equality policies. It also looks at corporate social responsibility, in particular the involvement of stakeholders. EGID, which was founded in 2001, also specializes in female entrepreneurship and has expertise in the field of integrated approaches to equality (gender mainstreaming and gender budgeting).

These activities concern the private and public, market and non-market sectors. EGID's expertise is recognized in Belgium as well as abroad: collaborations with the University of Paris Dauphine, the Cnam, the Management School in Strasbourg and the AFMD (French Association of Diversity Managers); numerous publications and research projects.

The Skill Management Cell, directed by Professor Jean-Marie Dujardin, specializes in skill management, developing managerial competence, leadership, career management, and skills validation as well as teaching and the pedagogy of in-company training.

LENTIC, headed up by Professor F. Pichault, is a research center specialized in organizational theory, HRM and change management. For over thirty years, LENTIC has carried out research and interventions centered on the social and organizational dimensions of change processes. It has become an essential reference for analyzing the evolutions of work and organizations. Its studies are undertaken in various companies, belonging to the public, non profit and private sectors. Its activities mainly cover three fields: information and communication technologies; HRM policies and practices; transformations of the labour market. It has developed internationally recognized expertise on inter-organizational partnerships and the management of professional transitions. The specificities of its theoretical and methodological approaches can be grasped through its numerous publications.

Through these activities, teachers and researchers are in direct contact with the daily reality of organizations, as much in the public as in the private sector. Their work is thus firmly anchored in the business world.

Social Enterprises & The Social Economy

This peak of excellence is mainly driven by the Centre for Social Economy (Centre d'Economie Sociale - CES) and pursues three major goals:

- to develop research in the areas of social enterprise/entrepreneurship and the social economy, mainly from the perspectives of economics, management and organization theory, sociology and law;
- to support, through its work, teaching in the area of social entrepreneurship and the social economy at the University of Liège and elsewhere, for Bachelor, Master and Doctoral students, as well as for practitioners in the area;
- to participate in building a "social enterprise ecosystem" by training and connecting social entrepreneurs, social enterprise managers and those who support them, and to offer private and public decision-makers services based on its expertise.

Research projects cover a wide range of conceptual (definitions), statistical (measurement) and more focused empirical work testing and building theory around social enterprise and the social economy. Using quantitative and/or qualitative methodologies, research questions are explored at the global level as well as in particular subfields of social enterprise such as culture, environment and energy, health, education, work integration, fair trade, etc. These research projects are led by 4 Professors, 12 PhD students and 4 researchers from Belgium and abroad. From 2012 to 2017, the CES coordinates a major "Inter-University Attraction Pole" (IAP) research program on social enterprise funded by the Belgian Science Policy and titled "If not for profit, for what? And how?".

RESEARCH CENTER

CES

Centre d'Economie Sociale

<http://www.ces.ulg.ac.be/>

Besides research, the Centre for Social Economy organizes two teaching programs. At the Master's level, since 2010, the "Social Enterprise Management" orientation trains some twenty students per year during the two years of the Master in Management Sciences. At the practitioners level, an executive education program ("Certificat d'université") was started in 2012 for social enterprise managers, social entrepreneurs and other practitioners in the field.

Alongside its director (Prof. Jacques Defourny), three Chairs within the CES contribute to teaching and research in economics, management and entrepreneurship related to social enterprise and the social economy, namely the "Cera Chair in Co-operative and Social Entrepreneurship" (Prof. Sybille Mertens), the "SRIV-Sowecsom Chair in Entrepreneurship and Social Innovation" (Prof. Benjamin Huybrechts) and the "Baillet Latour Chair in Philanthropy and Social Investment" (Prof. Virginie Xhaufclair).

The CES is a founding member of the EMES International Research Network (created in 1996) and has hosted the Coordination Unit since then. EMES includes 12 research centres and hundreds of individual researchers throughout the world who work in the field of social enterprise and related issues (social and solidarity economy, non-profit organisations, third sector, etc.). The last edition of the EMES Research Conference on Social Enterprise was organized in Liege (July 2013) in collaboration with the CES and the IAP research program, with more than 300 contributions presented.

The international reputation of HEC-ULg in this domain is also reinforced by the presence of CIRIEC (International Research Centre on Public and Co-operative Economy). CIRIEC is an international and nongovernmental scientific organization whose goals are to implement and promote the search for information, the scientific research and the publications related to economic sectors and activities oriented towards the general interest (policy, regulation, public services, public companies and the social economy).

Research activities in the fields of Supply Chain Management (SCM) and Quantitative Methods (QM) are focused on analyzing data collected from a variety of sources and decision making informed by data analysis and supported by optimization techniques with the aim of enabling enterprises and organizations to improve their service levels and operational efficiency, in particular in the context of supply chain and logistics management.

The main areas of expertise are therefore analytical methods of uncovering business insights and predicting future situations with use of data (statistics, nonparametric regression, censored data analysis, data mining, artificial intelligence, machine learning, natural language processing, pattern recognition), and also of recommending decisions (operations research, mathematical modelling, mathematical optimization, stochastic programming, combinatorial optimization, integer programming, graph theory, exact and heuristic solution approaches, metaheuristics, functions of binary variables, mathematics).

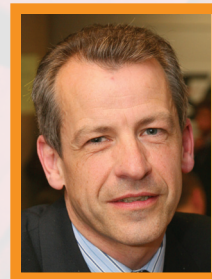

SCM is a major field of application of such analytical methods, and these areas are frequently associated in the so-called “industrial engineering” departments and programmes of many foreign universities. At HEC-ULg, they form an essential component of our “business engineering” curricula and are closely linked due to the scientific profiles of the people in place. The research activities in these fields at HEC-ULg focus on the following application areas:

- Supply and operations management: design and coordination of supply chains; design and coordination of intermodal transport networks; production planning and scheduling; vehicle routing in freight and passenger transport; inventory routing; vehicle loading in air and route transport; pricing and revenue management in transport; transport economics; network economics; statistical process control
- Finance: portfolio optimization; stock market forecasting; operational risk management
- Marketing: clustering customer complaints; question-answering systems

One of the priorities in this field of excellence is to establish and maintain collaborations with privately owned companies and organizations like the Logistics in Wallonia business cluster. The teaching staff at HEC-ULg collaborate regularly on applied research projects for companies including Arcelor-Mittal, CMI, Jost Group, Magotteaux, Corman, Akers Yards (Chantiers de l’Atlantique) and for local governments (shires, regions...). These collaborative projects have recently resulted in industrial applications, doctoral research, and academic publications.

Research activities in the fields of SCM and QM are mostly based in the research centre QuantOM (Quantitative methods and Operations Management). QuantOM is the association of several researchers under a common label to stimulate and promote research conducted at HEC-ULg (or more broadly, within the ULg) in the fields of QM in management, operations management, and logistics. In these areas, the members of QuantOM carry on teaching and research activities and put their expertise at the service of the companies’ specific needs.

Tax Institute

The Tax Institute of the University of Liege was created as the result of a joint initiative of HEC-Management School and the Law Faculty, with the objective of encouraging multi-disciplinary projects between the two faculties and beyond.

The Tax Institute comprises specialists from both faculties, and encompasses academic staff and practitioners (members of the bar or public office, fiscal counselors, members of public and international organizations). Specific areas of interest are: fiscal federalism, corporate taxation

(including international and European aspects), personal income and inheritance taxation, indirect taxation (VAT and excises), environmental taxation, as well as regional and local taxation. Key disciplines involved include tax law and public finance law, tax policy and administration as well as the economics of taxation.
