HEC Liège Management School – University of Liège is proud to present its new and expanded campus, which is built around a brand new building, designed by the architects of Atelier 229, and the renovation of the adjacent buildings of Sainte-Julienne.

This new 1.6-hectare campus, which reunites the historic Beauregard site, reflects the School's evolution, its commitment to training young people, its openness to the world, its reputation for leadership and innovation in teaching and research, and its role as a player in the service of the region.

Sustainable with advantageous energy performances, equipped with the latest technologies, based on a collaborative and transversal approach through open and flexible spaces, the building echoes the strategy of HEC Liège and allows to gather all the members of the School on a unique site.

Our new campus is the result of a true public-private partnership in favor of university teaching and research. The project has been supported by the University of Liège and the School's partner companies, which have been heavily involved. To all of them, we express our thanks.
